Note from the Jarrells and Hyaets ministry...

Thank you for supporting the mission team that came to serve Hyaets in August. Our neighbors are still talking about the yummy meal and the kids are happily sporting their new book bags. We hope you'll come back again. We covet your prayers, support, and friendship. Thank you for remaining family with us, even at a distance.

We love you... Helms & Greg, John Tyson and Zeb

From the Pastor

The Box?

Sit in a meeting long enough and someone will mention the need to “think outside the box.” While some consider the expression trite from overuse, it really is a good metaphor. Too many organizations and individuals hold to a limited vision or stifling assumptions which keep them confined to a “box”.

In science, researchers might assume that a certain result is impossible, only to have someone achieve a significant success which then leads many others to pursue that area of study and vault into great strides of progress. Industry and commerce are full of companies which failed to see how changing technologies would affect their markets. “Everyone needs buggy whips”... or electric typewriters... or whatever.

To read the Bible is to see a God who constantly tears apart the boxes people live in. Moses said “I can’t” and God proves him wrong. The women ran breathless from the empty tomb and no one believed that Jesus had busted the box of death wide open. Saul of Tarsus operated within his legalistic religious box until Jesus knocked him to the ground and opened his eyes to God’s grace and forgiveness.

So, what “box” do you find yourself in today? Hmm... that’s one trouble with a box: you don’t realize when or how you are in one! Since you assume something can’t happen, you don’t look for it. Because you “know” something is impossible, you don’t attempt to achieve it. Having grown comfortable with certain “boundaries”, you really don’t try to stretch, probe, adjust, or change the way you do things now.

Too bad, since at the end of the day, boxes are self-imposed, and we usually live in them because we want to. – Do you really want to?

Yours in Him,

Lee
